

Circular Nepal: Upcycling For Education

Project number: 5

Date: 5th August, 2026

Location: Prativa Secondary School

Specified committee: Community

Area of focus: Community and economic development

About: 'Circular Nepal: Upcycling For Education'

Introduction:

On 5th August 2026, the Interact Club of Prativa Pokhara Fishtail, in collaboration with Chakravayu Nepal, carried out "Circular Nepal: Upcycling For Education," a sustainability-driven service project centered on collecting old denims from our college that were otherwise intended for recycling. The initiative aimed to give these materials a second life by transforming them into practical, reusable essentials for children in under-resourced communities of rural Nepal.

Project Summary:

As part of "Circular Nepal: Upcycling For Education," the Interact Club of Prativa Pokhara Fishtail partnered with Chakravayu Nepal to collect old, discarded denim materials from our college that would have otherwise ended up as recycling waste. Club members took the initiative to gather and sort these denims, ensuring usable fabric was set aside for the project. The collected denim was then sent to be repurposed into durable school bags and stationery pouches, specifically designed to support students in under-resourced rural communities across Nepal. Through this collaboration, discarded materials were given a meaningful second life, reducing textile waste while simultaneously addressing a practical need among children who often lack basic school essentials. Club members were actively involved throughout the process, from the collection drive to coordinating with Chakravayu Nepal on the upcycling effort, reflecting the club's ongoing commitment to environmental responsibility and community upliftment. The project successfully bridged sustainability and service, demonstrating how creative reuse of everyday materials can directly improve access to education for children who need it most.
